DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-15 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Mizell et al. Patent Application Publication Pub. No.: 2003/0125013).

Regarding claim 1, Mizell teaches a method for transmission over packet networks [see abstract], the method comprising: detecting, at a first node [may read on node 30, 0030], at least one next node [may read on node 20-21, see 0030]; creating a channel between the first node and the at least one next node [the channels reads on the arrows between the nodes 21, 30 and 20 as shown in Fig. 1]; receiving, at the first node, a first packet [0014]; detecting a protocol of the first packet [reads on the data protocol supported by MTS 100, 0031]; merging the first packet with a second packet of the same protocol as the first packet [see 0031, lines 1-6 and 0033];

Mizell does not specifically teach "transmitting the merged first packet and second packet to the at least one next node via the channel".

However, Mizell shows that the received packets as shown in Fig. 4 will be combined in order to get authenticated in steps 500 of Fig. 6 and step 530 in Fig. 7.

Thus, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to transmit the merged packets, since the merged packets provide an enhanced VOIP quality.

Claims 10 and 15 are rejected for the same reasons as discussed above with respect to claim 1. The claimed "interface" reads on the interface within the first node [0014]. The claimed "processor" and "port" are inherent in the Mizell's network.

Regarding claims 2-3 and 14, Mizell teaches the first and the second packet contains circuit-based information [see abstract, also packets obviously should contain circuits information].

Regarding claim 4, Mizell teaches determining whether available bandwidth exceeds a predetermined threshold [0010].

Regarding claims 5 and 7, this limitation is obvious because one of an ordinary skill in the art may choose the threshold to be at any desired level. One can set the threshold to be the minimum quality. Other can choose the threshold to be the maximum quality.

Regarding claim 6, Mizell teaches rejecting a communication related to the first packet.

For claim 8, Mizell teaches the node is an existing media gateway [see 0003].

For claim 9, Mizell teaches node is connected to a circuit-switched voice network [see Fig. 1].

For claims 11-13, see Fig. 1.
